MATTY WAS "THE GOODS"

That's the Story of the Game Against Brooklyn.

BARGER NO GIANT KILLER

New York Bats Made Merry with His Offerings, and the Final Tally Was 7 to 3.

For the neophytes' ske it might be added that the Giants had the long end and the Superbas the short of the score in the game played Washington Park yesterday afternoon. Twenty thousand "fans" responded to the of the first real baseball weather and and every seat in the stands, overflowing mber of hundreds on to the field. "big boy" was right in his element ly gathered over the Brooklyn bench. The Glants fell upon Cy Barger's curves feroously in the first frame for three timely hits, which, coupled with a hit batsman, an error and two passes, netted four runs. When New York added a brace in the sixth more clean hitting Matty eased up, and the Superbas made four hits count for three then he tightened up, and it was all over but the shouting.

As usual, he was hit hard and to little surpose. Except when they bunched three singles and a double in the sixth frame. the Superbas wasted their energies in batting the ball about with no one on the tags. Matty was invincible in the pinches were made off the big pitcher's delivery. el making a double and two single while Wheat and Tooley had a double Matty struck out seven batsmen and gave only one pass.

Rarely has a bigger crowd gathered a Washington Park. 'The real 'fans' of both the Brooklyn and Manhattan brand were en hand with coats off and handkerchiefs The stands were filled at hour, and long lines of prospectiv ticket buyers stretched a block or so from the gates. Even the attraction of a big circus across the street failed to keep the What chance had the hearded lady and the daring snake charmer against Mathewson and Barger?

The splendid game played by the Superbas on Friday had raised the hopes of the Brooklyn "fans" once more, while thousands of the Giants' rooters poured across the bridge to see McGraw's men make it five straight against their neighbors. The management had its hands full in taking the crowd, and special policemen were called in to clear the field just before the game started.

The Superbas varied their playing, now making costly errors and now pulling off some sparkling fielding, which showed what could do when they set about it. Zimmerman, at third base, stood head and houlders above the rest of the infield. He eight chances without a flaw and ade several hair-raising one-hand stops. but he did not flinch, and defeat before Connie Mack's men. the most spectacular catches of the game in capturing a puzzling fly off Snoderess's hat near the foul line in the scond frame.
